

Sharing Gospel Truths with Love and Sensitivity

Teach truth with love. Although we need not apologize for or feel uncomfortable sharing our beliefs, in our desire to be bold we may sometimes communicate in unloving ways. You might pray for help to communicate your love for others while sharing gospel truths. You could ask yourself, How can I share this truth with kindness and love?

Listen to understand. Thoughtfully seek to understand the circumstances, viewpoints, and perspectives of others. Recognize that they may view a gospel teaching, question, or issue through a lens of experience different from your own. You might ask yourself, What do I know about this person that can influence how I share this truth?

Be humble and respectful. Recognize and acknowledge limitations in your own understanding. Consider what the Lord has and has not revealed. Allow for various ways of applying true principles. Show respect for others who have alternative beliefs and viewpoints. Consider asking yourself, How can I be respectful of others who have alternative views and ways of thinking about this gospel truth?

---

Teach truth with love. Although we need not apologize for or feel uncomfortable sharing our beliefs, in our desire to be bold we may sometimes communicate in unloving ways. You might pray for help to communicate your love for others while sharing gospel truths. You could ask yourself, How can I share this truth with kindness and love?

Listen to understand. Thoughtfully seek to understand the circumstances, viewpoints, and perspectives of others. Recognize that they may view a gospel teaching, question, or issue through a lens of experience different from your own. You might ask yourself, What do I know about this person that can influence how I share this truth?

Be humble and respectful. Recognize and acknowledge limitations in your own understanding. Consider what the Lord has and has not revealed. Allow for various ways of applying true principles. Show respect for others who have alternative beliefs and viewpoints. Consider asking yourself, How can I be respectful of others who have alternative views and ways of thinking about this gospel truth?

---

Teach truth with love. Although we need not apologize for or feel uncomfortable sharing our beliefs, in our desire to be bold we may sometimes communicate in unloving ways. You might pray for help to communicate your love for others while sharing gospel truths. You could ask yourself, How can I share this truth with kindness and love?

Listen to understand. Thoughtfully seek to understand the circumstances, viewpoints, and perspectives of others. Recognize that they may view a gospel teaching, question, or issue through a lens of experience different from your own. You might ask yourself, What do I know about this person that can influence how I share this truth?

Be humble and respectful. Recognize and acknowledge limitations in your own understanding. Consider what the Lord has and has not revealed. Allow for various ways of applying true principles. Show respect for others who have alternative beliefs and viewpoints. Consider asking yourself, How can I be respectful of others who have alternative views and ways of thinking about this gospel truth?