

Friends around the World

A schoolmate asked to play with me and my friends at recess. We said to leave us alone. Later, I felt bad and was sorry I didn't let her play with us. Now if I notice she is alone, I ask her to play with me so she can have a friend.

There was a tornado in the state where I live. I went to my room and said a prayer for the people who lost their homes. I felt the Holy Ghost telling me I did the right thing.

Henry H., age 8,

I drew this picture when I learned the Book of Mormon is the keystone of our religion. The temple is always in my sight, and I want to go there when I'm old enough.
